

FRANCE WILLING TO GRANT ITALY FEW CONCESSIONS

But Will Not Negotiate Immediately On African Claims, It Is Said

AFTER SPANISH WAR

Offers Include Large Share In Ownership of Ethiopian Railroad

By International News Service
PARIS, Mar. 27.—France is willing to negotiate with Italy and make modest concessions to Premier Mussolini's African demands—but not immediately—it was learned today.

Proposals that France will put forward, later when the Spanish war is over and the general European atmosphere has improved, had been tentatively offered in Rome by Andre Francois-Poncet, the French ambassador. According to authoritative quarters, these offers are:

1. Two seats on the Board of Directors of the Suez Canal, and a substantial part of stock in the Canal Company.
 2. A large share in the direction and ownership of the Ethiopian railroad.
 3. A free zone for Italy in Djibouti, Somaliland, terminus of the railroad.
 4. Classification of the southern frontier of Tunisia.
 5. A measure of autonomy for Italians in Tunisia.
- Daladier will give a guarded reply to Mussolini in a world-wide radio speech, probably Wednesday night. Conversation remains impossible so Italy claims predominance in the Mediterranean and Adriatic, it was explained, and so long as there are Italian troops in Spain.

Russia Strengthens Frontier

Warsaw, Mar. 27.—Soviet Russia is rushing to strengthen her frontier fortifications in the Bratislava regions and along the Roumanian frontier to face possible Nazi-German aggression, it was learned in Warsaw today.

The Soviets, according to messages received from Moscow, are strengthening the border guards along Roumanian-Estonian frontiers, as a result of German occupation of Slovakia and Memel.

Baltimore, Md., Mar. 27.—Flying the same route that the first ocean clipper ship plied last century, Pan American Airways giant seaplane, the Yankee Clipper, landed at Horta, in the Azores Island, this morning after a 17 hour, 32 minute flight from Baltimore. Averaging about 165 miles an hour over the 2,880 mile course, the 42-ton flying boat, carrying 24 persons—the largest number ever to fly the Atlantic—glided to a perfect landing.

The Clipper was in touch by radio with its Baltimore base throughout the journey, which began at 2:35 p. m. yesterday. The big boat will open the commercial trans-Atlantic air service in the near future. Officials said the trip was being made to give the huge four-motored ship a thorough shake-down to show up any weaknesses and to familiarize the ground crews at the bases it will touch during its scheduled crossings.

Shanghai, China, Mar. 27.—More than 400,000 Chinese troops of General Kai-Shek's reorganized army, retreated today as Japanese authorities claimed the capture of Nanchang in the biggest offensive since Hankow was taken last October. The capital of Kiangsi Province, 316 miles southwest of Shanghai, was regarded as one of China's "impregnable towns."

BRISTOL HIGH GYM TEAM PLACES SECOND IN MEET

Bloomsburg Carries Off The Honors With Score of 31 Points

13 SCHOOLS COMPETE

LANCASTER, Mar. 27.—Pottsville High's three year reign of the Eastern P. I. A. A. gymnastic title was shattered here Saturday afternoon by Bloomsburg High, who, for the first time since the tournaments under the P. I. A. A. started three years ago, captured the Regional crown.

The school coached by Peter Wisler, captured the meet with a total of 31 points or approximately one-third of the maximum total of 90 points scored in the meet. Coach Steve Juenger's Cardinal and Grey gymnasts of Bristol High finished in the number two slot with the three-year kings winding up in third place with a final total of 15 points. Bristol scored 19½ points.

Williamsport High was fourth with 9 points, Lehigh, was fifth with a total of 5½, and both Jenkintown and Lancaster were tied for sixth place with 5 points each. West Chester, Fallington, York, Cheltenham and E. Mauch Chunk failed to score a point, although the latter four schools were represented by only one individual in the meet. Those schools altogether qualified three entrants, two of which will go as alternates on their respective pieces. Upper Darby High school was the only team to "scratch" from District One. They had only four entrants in the meet, however, while Cheltenham "scratched" two of its three qualifiers.

Thirteen schools lined up for the meet, but only twelve competed since Upper Darby withdrew. But of those twelve, a quartet had only one entrant while all the rest of the schools had at least five entrants in the meet. The dozen schools represented four districts, including 1-3-4-11 with no less than 76 gymnasts taking part in the meet at the million and a half dollar John Piersol McCaskey High School of Lancaster.

Start Work of Turning Mill Into A Theatre

NEW HOPE, Mar. 27.—The work of turning a 239-year-old flour mill into a theatrical Mecca was started here yesterday. Richard Bennett turned the first shovelful of earth and Burgess Meredith delivered a speech.

There remained only the mundane business of paying contractors to transform the old mill—site of the first house in this historic borough—into one of the finest of America's summer theatres. About $40,000 is available for the job.

Not only is it to be the daddy of Constance and Joan declared, "a dramatic school for all worthy applicants, rich and poor alike, regardless of religion or creed," but the boards of the 60-foot stage will resound to the feet of the great, not only of stage, but of pen.

Take Alexander Woolcott, for instance. He's going to take another fling at acting, when the theatre is built, in "Our Town." Dorothy Parker is to do Hedda Gabler. And Joan Bennett will forsake Hollywood long enough to appear in Lillom.

The theatre is expected to be ready by June 1. It will be under the management of St. John Terrell, who yesterday became master of ceremonies to introduce to the gaping crowd some of the Bucks county celebrities and their celebrity-pals from afar.

Among those attending the ceremony were Philadelphia's flying enthusiasts, Alfred and Constance Wolf; Myron McCormick, movie and stage actor; Anthony Vellier, writer and producer; Elizabeth North, stage manager of "Five Kings," in which Meredith is currently appearing in Philadelphia; Connie Ernst, Cecilia Mendez, Joan Mortimer and Susan Palmer.

Bucks countian Dorothy Parker and her husband, Allan Campbell, sent regrets, and Orson Welles didn't arrive because the weather spoiled his plan to land, with Meredith, on the Delaware.

Painters, Attention!

By the Stroller
One firm near Bristol is minus a sign giving the firm name on its plant which can be seen from the thoroughfare that passes the site. But we believe that this said firm is the only one in this section which uses a pennant designating the firm. But it is only when there is a wind obliging enough to waft the pennant out straight from the pole, that the name "Samuel Jackson Sons, Inc." can be discerned.

We rather wonder why some painters haven't tried to "drum" up business there. Jackson should have a real sign.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Three of the 75 women who attended the twenty-fourth anniversary dinner-meeting of the Doylestown Friendship Thimble Social in Salem Reformed Church were charter members and were present at the birth of the organization nearly a quarter of a century ago at the home of the president, Mrs. A. C. LaRue.

The three remaining charter members are the president, Mrs. LaRue, and Mrs. Arthur Morris, of this place, and Mrs. Mabel Richmond, of Kirkwood, N. J. Two of the five charter members are no longer living.

Mrs. LaRue, who has guided since its inception the destiny of one of the best known welfare organizations in Doylestown, said the Friendship Thimble was really organized at her home March 24, 1915, when four women were guests at her home.

Today the Friendship Thimble Social has an active membership of 75, and a silent membership of an additional 35.

Prof. Charles R. Hollenbach, a native of Perkaskie, and a graduate of the Perkaskie High School was named Principal of the Atlantic City High School at a salary of $6400.

Perkaskie and especially those associated with the schools, are justly proud of the honor which has been bestowed upon one of its own and are showering congratulations upon him.

The promotion of Prof. Hollenbach to the principalship is the latest of a series of promotions that began shortly after he completed his work in college and entered the teaching profession.

He graduated from the Perkaskie High School in 1908 when Prof. A. C. Rutter, now assistant county superintendent, was principal. He entered the State Normal School at West Chester and upon his graduation at that institution taught at the Friends School, Abington. After teaching several years he entered the University of Pennsylvania for further studies and later became a member of the faculty of the Chester, Pa., schools.

About fifty interested persons gathered at the Southampton school for the purpose of discussing the advisability of organizing a parent-teacher association in Upper Southampton. The movement started among several of the parents who have long felt the need for such an organization, and a committee was appointed by the local women's club to arrange for the meeting. This committee, consisting of Mrs. Harry Fetter, Mrs. William Stahl, Mrs. Corson, Mrs. Charles Emmenton and Mrs. William Lynch, appointed Harry Harding to act as chairman of the meeting with Albert Haas as secretary pro-tem.

CONCRETE GUTTERS

MORRISVILLE, Mar. 27.—Morrisville officials have received notice from the county commissioners that the borough will receive $3,805.96 in county aid toward cost of street improvements. The street department has also been authorized to have West Maple avenue, from Lafayette avenue to Jefferson avenue, improved with the balance of the WPA allowance granted for West Maple avenue, between Pennsylvania avenue and Lafayette avenue. The residents along this proposed improvement will be ordered to have concrete gutters placed.

Sixteen new street name signs and about 60 speed law signs have been placed in the borough, the latter to comply with the new speed law of 25 miles an hour.

Borough officials have also decided to make application to the WPA for approval of a project for the laying of 1,800 feet of six-inch water main to reach a home being built at Elm and Linden avenue and others in prospect of building, just north of the borough.

Bids for a new one and one-half ton dump truck are being advertised for, to be opened at the next meeting of Common Council. The pumps at the water works are to be repaired and the water works painted at the request of the water committee of the borough which also reported the 13 tests of the water made during the past month were all satisfactory.

Deeds to the following thoroughfares in Highland Park have been turned over to the borough: West Maple, from Hamilton Boulevard to Lafayette; Jefferson from Trenton avenue to East Birks Drive; Hamilton Boulevard, from Trenton to East Birks Drive, and East Birks Drive, from Hamilton Boulevard to Jefferson.

A Preventive Measure

Washington, March 25.
THE fact that Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, voted for the Reorganization bill, which passed the Senate last Wednesday, is pretty good evidence that the offensive features which a year ago aroused such nationwide opposition have been eliminated.

IN its present shape the bill represents an almost complete denial to the President of what he wanted. No one can compare this measure with the one he originally sponsored and escape that conclusion. That is too clear to dispute. When the record is reviewed it is also clear that if it had not been for the determined two-year fight made by Senator Byrd, the President would be in possession today of the really dictatorial power with which the original proposals sought to clothe him.

IN any history of the Roosevelt regime, his course on this reorganization issue is bound to rank as one of his two major mistakes—just a little less damaging than the court-packing proposal, of which it was a companion piece. Conceding to Mr. Roosevelt the same desire other Presidents have had to reshape the great sprawling governmental structure so as to promote efficiency and reduce confusion, it is, nevertheless, accepted that he was inspired by two other motives not nearly so admirable. Unquestionably one was a determination to blanket Senator Byrd, the real reorganization pioneer of the period, who had presented a bill as early as 1935.

TWO FROM EDDINGTON HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. William Grafenstine Injured and Are in Hospital

TWO WOMEN ALSO HURT

Four were injured in this section of Bucks County during the night, a husband and wife from Eddington each having numerous and painful injuries, and a Philadelphia woman sustaining a fracture of the back. The four were hurt in two separate accidents.

The injured: William Grafenstine, 61, Street Road, Eddington, fracture of the right thigh, lacerations of the tongue, possible fracture of the right leg.

Mrs. Martha Grafenstine, 60, wife of above, possible fracture of the left thigh, possible fracture of the skull, laceration of the right eye, and brush burns of body.

The Grafenstines were, according to report of private Swann of the Oxford Valley barracks, Pennsylvania Motor Police, travelling East on Bristol Pike. It is stated that when they reached point near Station avenue, Andalusia, at 9.25 last evening, their car was struck in the left rear by a sedan operated by Louis Tilly, 254 W. Thayer street, Philadelphia, who was traveling in the same direction, and who attempted to pass the Grafenstine car.

The Grafenstine car was hurled against a pole at the right-hand side of the road, the pole severed in half, and the front of the car demolished. The Tilly machine had a dented fender. The Philadelphia was unhurt. No arrests were made.

The Grafenstines were taken to Frankford Hospital, in Bucks County Rescue Squad ambulance.

In the second crash which occurred at midnight, two women were injured on the Lincoln Highway, near Philadelphia city line.

Those hurt: Mrs. Pearl Valentine, 1157 S. 54th street, Philadelphia, fractured back. Miss Rita White, 1912 S. 56th street, Philadelphia, laceration of the left eye.

After first aid treatment at the station of Bucks County Rescue Squad, Parkland, Mrs. Valentine was taken to Misericordia Hospital, Philadelphia, in the squad's ambulance.

The driver of the car in which the two were riding was Alfred Panepinto, 809 N. 63rd street, Philadelphia, who was unhurt.

The investigating officer, Private Mitchell, stated that investigation showed that the accident was caused when David E. Fogle, 5405 Tacony street, Philadelphia, operating a sedan, pulled out from a gasoline station on the left of the highway and over into the right section, into the path of the Panepinto sedan which was being operated toward Philadelphia. Fogle was unhurt, and a passenger in that car, Miss Helen Johnson, Philadelphia, was uninjured.

The entire front of the Panepinto car was demolished, and the Fogle sedan was damaged in the rear.

No arrests were made, officers awaiting outcome of injuries of Mrs. Valentine.

Justice Gives Woman Suspended Sentence

MORRISVILLE, Mar. 27.—Following an alleged fight between Miss Margaret Doheny, 25, 137 Grove street; and Mrs. Robert Lister, 231 West Franklin street, Friday night, Miss Doheny was given a suspended sentence on a disorderly conduct charge, Saturday, by Justice of Peace Neal Nolan.

Mrs. Lister, who swore out a complaint against Miss Doheny, charged in court that Miss Doheny was attempting to break up her home by going out with her husband, and related how she had secreted herself in the back seat of her husband's car when he and Miss Doheny went to Princeton to see a show.

In this uncomfortable position she rode to Princeton and back again, she testified, and then confronted the couple as they neared home. An argument ensued, she said.

Friday night, Mrs. Lister continued, she walked on Delmor avenue and observed Miss Doheny ahead of her, walking toward where Lister's car was parked. Another argument took place, it was testified, and the two finally came to blows. Mrs. Lister said that Miss Doheny hit her so hard with a handbag that she was forced to go to a physician for treatment.

Nolan suspended sentence with the stipulation that Miss Doheny communicate with him or with police if Lister insisted upon making engagements with her. She agreed. Lister, a master mechanic in a Morrisville plant, was not in court.

MAN SUFFOCATES IN HOLE HE DUG FOR A WELL AT HIS HOME

Lester Kennedy, 30, Victim of Unusual Accident At Cornwells Heights

FOUND BY HIS WIFE

Firemen Rush Victim in Fire Apparatus To Frankford Hospital

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Mar. 27.—A man was suffocated in a hole which he was digging for a well in the rear lawn of his home here Saturday afternoon. The victim of a very unusual accident was Lester Kennedy, 30, State Road and Chestnut Avenue.

Kennedy was found by his wife, Katherine, after he had fallen head first into the hole, his shoulders becoming so wedged that he was unable to free himself and thus met his death.

Kennedy returned home from his employment at Schute and Koerting's plant at about one o'clock Saturday afternoon. After having lunch he and his wife went into the yard and Kennedy started to dig a hole. He worked until late afternoon and at about 5.30 Mrs. Kennedy went into the house to prepare for the evening meal. Fifteen minutes later she returned to the yard to ask her husband to come to supper. Mrs. Kennedy could not find her husband at first and no response was received to her calls. It was her idea at first that he was hiding from her as a joke. Then suddenly gazing into the hole she saw her husband buried head-first with just his feet sticking out.

Mrs. Kennedy called a neighbor, Robert O'Neil, from across the street, and he and Louis Webber pulled Kennedy from the hole. Mrs. Kennedy ran across the street and sounded the alarm on the fire station of Union Fire Company. The firemen took Kennedy in the fire apparatus to the Frankford Hospital, but he was dead, it is said, when he was pulled from the ground. Artificial respiration was given by O'Neil and Harry L. Hughes while en route to the hospital.

The hole was six feet deep, four feet wide, with about seven inches of water in the bottom. It is said that Kennedy, in bending over the digger he was using, apparently slipped and fell head-first into the excavation. His shoulders were wedged tight into the sides and his face reached into the water, thus suffocating him.

The deceased is survived by his wife. He was a member of Union Fire Company, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Welder, Simons avenue.

Langhorne Manor Woman Reports $600 Jewel Robbery

LANGHORNE, Mar. 27.—A jewel robbery in Langhorne Manor borough was reported to the Pennsylvania Motor Police at the end of the week, the amount involved in the theft being listed at $600.

The robbery in which the thief or thieves gained entrance by breaking two panes of glass in the sun porch and reaching in to unlock the door, occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Wood, Station avenue, Langhorne Manor, some time Thursday evening.

When Mrs. Wood and her son and daughter-in-law returned from Philadelphia late in the evening, Mrs. Wood noticed that her jewel case, measuring about 19 by seven inches, was missing from the dressing-table in her bedroom. Dismissing the affair from her mind with the idea that a younger child had the case in her room, Mrs. Wood did not make inquiries until Friday morning, and learned that no one in the household had knowledge of it.

In the leather case had reposed: a ring containing one large diamond and surrounded by six smaller diamonds, valued at $150; watch charms, other rings, necklaces, etc. The total loss is placed at $600.

Investigation showed that two panes of glass had been broken in the sun porch and the door unlocked. The only other item missing in the house was a .32 calibre revolver which was in a drawer in a small stand in Mrs. Wood's bedroom.

Private Jones is making an investigation.

PITY THE OVERPRIVILEGED

When so much is being said about society's duty to the underprivileged children the public is forgetting the handicap that comes from overprivilege. If statistics were made and published it might be found that more overprivileged children than underprivileged end their careers in poverty.

If in a person's youth all his wants are anticipated and supplied he enters maturity in a state of satiety. Everything is likely to bore him. He has to seek his thrills in unnatural pastimes, perhaps doing foolish and freakish things.

On the other hand if all during his youth he yearned for things and had to learn self-denial, his wants may increase with his years, and the lesson of self-denial will have taught him a discipline that insures success. He will still want, and will strive to achieve. This probably explains why those children who have small advantages often accomplish more than those who had every advantage. Some philosopher has said that the world may be divided into two classes: Those who had advantages and wished they hadn't; and those who didn't have advantages and wished they had. This may mean that the overprivileged suffer embarrassment because having had much, much is expected of them.

The need for ambitious self-direction cannot always be understood in youth, but it is nearly always felt by the youth who finds it difficult to keep up with the procession. In one of the great training schools of America where it is difficult for the underprivileged to gain admission, severe punishment is inflicted on a student found to be careless or forgetful about his personal possessions. It is a part of the discipline of the school to teach its students that a person indifferent to his own property can never be entrusted with important affairs of other people or of business.

Overprivilege is almost sure to deprive a child of his ability to understand real values in life.

Every child wants to be a success, and he would be if he knew how. It is unfortunate for him if his circumstances throw him into the class of underprivileged or overprivileged, because in those two classes are found parents who can be of little assistance.

TYPICAL

Here is a sliding scale by which ambitious young men may measure some possibilities. A survey that questioned 5,000 of the 100,000 members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of the United States, reports achievements at various ages. In the group of ages in the early 20's, 82.5 per cent had salaries under $2,400. Those of the 30-year age level listed 68 per cent who were getting more than that figure. Those in the 20's numbered 41 per cent who were executives, professionals or proprietors of their own businesses. In the group of ages in the 30's, 71.5 per cent were executives, professionals or proprietors.

America's typical young business man was determined as one who earns $300 a month, supports a wife and children, drives a car and is a homeowner or is planning to be one.

A rumor persists that this isn't the real Hitler but four other fellows. This may go on until each of them is obliged to hang a roll of wallpaper publicly.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Aug. 30, 1877. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

The following items are culled from the Bucks County Gazette, issue of August 30, 1877:

MOHRISVILLE—Mr. Woodruff, county superintendent, held a meeting at Penn Valley school house in Falls Township for the purpose of making suggestions to the teachers in regards to manner of opening their schools, etc., for the Fall term. The teachers of this borough met with those of Falls Township. School opens next Monday.

Messrs. E. P. Wright and S. Eastburn are buying calves and selling them to farmers in the vicinity. At least 120 have been purchased and nearly all of them disposed of. Mr. Wright purchases them in New York state.

NEWPORTVILLE—Last Sunday afternoon there were plenty of teams on the road enroute for the colored camp meeting at Edgington. The object of the visitors, however, was not to get good but to have some fun.

C. Lindhurst is building a new barn, and intends building also a wagon house, under which he will have an ice house.

Three thousand cartloads of manure from Philadelphia have been landed at Flushing, and on the bar at Glen Lane.

The Flushing saw mills will stop running on the first of September. The proprietor has saved up all his logs, but as most of the lumber is still unsold, he has concluded to shut down.

Mrs. Susan Hibbs, residing on Buckley street, was burned seriously on Saturday evening by the explosion of a lamp. Some men hearing her scream went in found her clothing in a blaze and threw carpets around her, thus probably saving her from fatal injury. She had been asleep on a sofa, previous to which she had put the lamp on an unlit stove in the kitchen, and whether she heard the explosion of the lamp and rushed out and took hold of it, or whether she arose while asleep and overturned the lamp causing it to explode, she does not know.

James W. Martin, Esq., is a candidate for the Democratic nomination of coroner. As Mr. Closson declines another nomination this leaves the contest as far as Bristol is concerned between Mr. Martin and Dr. Groom. As both are gentlemen of well known integrity, and are fully qualified to fill the position, we will have an efficient coroner if either one is chosen.

Charles E. Banes has been re-appointed to his former position in the treasury department at Washington. Does the yacht club thereby lose its president?

The Bristol Rowing Club will try the shell which they contemplate purchasing this evening at 6.30 o'clock.

E. L. and H. B. Banes are making further additions to their machine shop on Dorrance street.

All the mills of Bristol are running to their full capacity.

Hon. S. B. Conover, U. S. Senator from Florida, is sojourning in Bristol.

Elwood Doron is building two brick houses, corner of Cedar and Walnut streets.

POINT PLEASANT—The Hume business has been very brisk for the last few weeks, and the Lake Brothers have been kept busy from early morn until late at night, to keep enough on hand to supply their customers.

SOUTHAMPTONVILLE—The rails used at the Centennial grounds have been purchased by Mr. McHugh, contractor at this place, and will be removed thither for a track for dirt cars, to aid in removing the dirt and rock at Sylman and Rhoads cut, on the Philadelphia and Newtown Railroad.

The anniversary of Davisville Baptist Sunday School will be held in Goentner's Grove, on Wednesday of this week.

WARMINSTER—At the large Temperance Hotel, Ivyland, there are many boarders from the city.

A course of five lectures will be given at the Laller Academy, Hatoro. Jacob Bussenger with his force of workmen are now busily engaged in building the masonry of the new county bridge over the Neshaminy at Warner's ford.

general dissent from New Deal policies, the President moved to deprive him of credit. That is no biased statement. It is a fact fully known and attested. The other motive was an itch to gain the control denied him by the Supreme Court over those great quasi-judicial boards such as the Interstate Commerce, Federal Reserve and Federal Trade. There was the further desire to wipe out the Comptroller General, whose tendency to publicly question New Deal expenditures was deeply resented, to revamp the Civil Service setup, to create two new Cabinet posts.

WHEN you consider what Mr. Roosevelt wanted and what he gets it is easy to understand why he is not pleased. In the first place, the Senate on motion of Senator Byrd, and by unanimous vote, has written into the preamble its first economy declaration since 1933. "The Congress," it reads, "declares that by reason of continual national deficits begun in 1931, it is desirable to reduce substantially governmental expenditures and that such reduction may be achieved in some measure by proceeding under the provisions of this Act."

THUS, economy is not only made the primary purpose of the bill but its desirability is unanimously voted by Congress. This clashes with the President's original utterance on reorganization in which he asserted that economy was a minor consideration and the money saved would be trivial. It also directly contradicts the Roosevelt-Eccles theory, as outlined in the January message, when the President said that to reduce was to "invite disaster"—an idea to which, despite Mr. Eccles' tongue-in-the-cheek gesture, they both still cling.

BUT for the skill of Senator Byrnes, not enough of the President's proposals to even measurably save his face would have been left. As things stand, every one of the quasi-judicial boards is exempted from the provisions of the bill, the Comptroller General remains untouched and untouched, the Civil Service Commission is not to be changed and there are not to be two new Cabinet officers and departments. Moreover, the President is specifically prohibited from incorporating into permanent departments any of the emergency agencies which expire at definite dates, unless Congress, itself, extend their lives by law.

IN addition, he is required to report in detail with every recommendation what economies are to be expected. In brief, there are in the bill many things to which the President was strongly opposed and there has been taken out almost everything he particularly wanted, except his six additional secretaries. Against this, although there were many who thought it an inexcusable extravagance, no fight was made because it would have seemed a personal attack. Mr. Roosevelt won on that and by going to extreme lengths in the exertion of pressure, he won on the method of confirming his recommendations. But every major feature of his original bill was lost. Naturally, not a great deal in the way of effective results is expected for the simple reason that Mr. Roosevelt has no zest for the sort of reorganization to which he is now restricted. Real reorganization will have to wait for another President. The real thing accomplished was the blocking of the wrong kind of reorganization.

"The DOCTOR" by MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

SYNOPSIS

It was just prior to the World War that young Dr. Chris Arden started in private practice. He found it hard enough to gain patronage; lack of funds also hampered him. His uncle, Dave Mortimer, an old country doctor who educated Chris, would like him for an assistant, but the young doctor prefers to make his own way. He rents a room and office from the shrewish Walters family. This he soon regretted, but sympathy for inefficient Henry Walters and his meek wife, Lily, caused him to stay with them. And as he thought of their lazy 17-year-old daughter, Kate, and ne'er-do-well son, Dick, that sympathy increased. Shortly after Chris hangs out his sign, Beverly Lewis, daughter of the richest man in town, brings her dog to him to have a bone removed from its throat. She leaves in anger when he refuses a fee. Following her meeting with Chris, Beverly chides her snooty, wealthy father, Jerry Ames for being a wastrel. He goes off in a fury when she tells him she does not love him. Chris has a hard time making ends meet that spring and summer. Then, one day, he is summoned to the Lewis home to attend a servant. Next morning, Chris is surprised to receive an invitation to tea from Beverly. Mrs. Lewis likes Chris and thinks of him as her potential son-in-law. She asks her husband to help the young doctor, but Lewis is not interested. The Lewis family takes a trip abroad. While they are away a typhoid epidemic afflicts their home town. Most of the victims are workers at Lewis' plants, the mill houses of which had neither city water nor sewage. Chris is furious with Lewis for allowing such conditions. Finally, Henry Walters contracts the fever and dies. Chris realizes that Lily and Kate are now solely dependent on him. Katie is secretly in love with Chris. Dr. Bergman, head surgeon at the hospital also succumbs to the disease. His dying request is that Chris be put on the surgical staff. He is appointed in October and his colleagues give him a dinner. Returning home, Chris picks up a stray dog. Despite Katie's protests the mongrel remains and is named "Caesar."

CHAPTER XI

Then one day he came face to face with Beverly Lewis in the street and felt a leap in his chest which most people would have considered was his heart; but which, had he been capable of thinking at all, he would doubtless have laid to the sympathetic nervous system or something similar. He was, however, not capable of thinking at all. He simply took off his hat and stood there gazing at her, while she gazed at rather shyly at his tired and haggard face.

"We've just got back," she said rather breathlessly. "You—you haven't been sick, have you?"

That brought him back to himself. Lovely as she was, young and appealing, twisting his very heart-strings—or the sympathetic nerves or what-have-you—she was Staunton Lewis's daughter, and his face set.

"No. But a good many other people have."

"That ought to mean that the practice is growing," she said. But he did not smile. "If you can call it that. We've had a typhoid epidemic here. Perhaps you haven't heard about it."

"I heard something," she said uncertainly. "I don't think I understand."

"No, you wouldn't. Your father might."

She was gazing at him incredulously. She knew nothing of what he had been through. All she saw was a tall young man in a faded shirt, who was staring down at her as though she had been guilty of something.

Her chin went up. "What about my father?"

"You might ask him," said Chris. "Ask him about the water supply in the mill districts, for one thing. And about a proper filtration plant for the city. There are a few other things, of course. If you like, I'll write them down."

"You needn't bother," she said coldly, and turning on her heel, left him abruptly.

He stood looking after her for a moment, his own head high. Then his anger died. He had been a fool. Curse and damn that temper of his. What did she know about the summer or the epidemic, or what had caused it? All those hot nights he had been waiting for just this hour, this meeting. Now he had ruined it. She hated him, and he deserved it.

"Father, are you—are we—responsible for what happened this summer?"

Thoroughly miserable and alarmed, he turned toward home, or what for lack of something better he now called home. The trees in the park had lost most of their leaves, and he surveyed them moodily. Nature went about her business more methodically than mankind. There was no nonsense about romantic love, no upsurge of passion, no battle to fight. Quietly and systematically it reproduced its kind. Probably the very leaves under his feet carried seed pods. They would find anchorage somewhere, he supposed, and in due time there would be other trees. But men, men and women, too. . . .

He remembered the women he had known: a girl he had loved long ago, the casual contacts of his medical school days, the women who were brought into the hospital from the near-by red-light district. Only one of them had ever interested him, a big woman who had a house a block or two away, and he had sewed her up after a hysterical girl had cut her badly with a knife.

"Any time you're in trouble, Doctor," she had said, "just call on me. I know everybody, and everybody knows me."

Her name was Bessie Smith, and before she left she had given him a pair of cuff links.

"Just send me one of them if ever you need me," she told him, "and you'll find I'm not bluffing."

To his astonishment, when he reached the house, he found the Lewis car at the door and the chauffeur waiting with an envelope.

"I rang sir," he said, "but nobody's answered."

He took the envelope, but he did not open it until he was in the back office with the doors shut. Then he did so with hands that were not too steady.

There was no note inside. Only a new ten-dollar bill, and he stood looking at it, his face a study in anger and exasperation.

In the house on the hill at that moment Beverly was confronting her father, shut into that handsome study of his where he sat behind his big desk, as beyond a barricade, and eyed her warily. Rather alike in some ways, the two of them, save that she was white with anger.

Dorothy Lamour fans, swing fans, Maxine Sullivan fans, romance fans, and just plain lovers of robust screen stories, will all find what they want in "St. Louis Blues," a sparkling cocktail of drama, music and humor, which Paramount presents at the Bristol Theatre today.

The story of "St. Louis Blues," as original as Miss Lamour's personality and as romantic as the famous song upon which the picture is based, highlights the dramatic experiences of a Broadway celebrity on the loose in the Mississippi region. Miss Lamour plays the celebrity who finds life for the first time aboard a showboat after running away from the demands and forced glamour of the theatrical world.

For the first time in her film career Constance Bennett is seen in a bathing suit on the screen! To most actresses bathing suits are as much a part of their wardrobe as shoes. But not to Connie. She hates them.

The dislike hasn't been any fault of the bathing suits. The fault is Miss Bennett's. She quite honestly admits she's not constructed to show one off to advantage and no movie producer ever before induced her to appear in one.

But for "Topper Takes A Trip," in which she is currently starring at the Grand Theatre the script placed Miss Bennett on the French Riviera, on the beach and in swimming, and to rewrite the script meant eliminating sequences which couldn't very well be eliminated. Producer Milton Bren put the problem right up to the actress and she agreed to break her rule of many years.

BRISTOL SECOND IN REGIONAL GYM MEET; BOWLERS ROLL LOW IN A. B. C'S.

BRISTOL BOWLERS ROLL LOW SCORES IN CLEVELAND MEET

Five-Man Event Gives Local Bowlers Plenty of Trouble in Alleys

ONLY THREE SCORE 500

On Second Day the Boys Adjusted Themselves and Hit the Maples

Barton's White Flash and Burlington, Bristol's bowling teams at the ABC's in Cleveland, rolled the lowest scores any local outfit ever hit the maples in the big tournament in the three years they have rolled them down the alleys in the "big time" events.

Low scores prevailed throughout in the five-man event in which the Bristol bowlers slammed the heavy balls down the alleys Friday evening. The boys apparently had trouble in getting used to the alleys with not even good scores for their own association being the rule more than the unusual.

Only three were able to knock the pins down at a 500 clip or better in their first event. The trio to go over the half thousand mark were Joe Amisson, who had 552, Baccardina, who had 534, and Ralph Cahall, who had a 525 score. All the rest failed to come up to the 500 circle. Sutton's 471 score which was high for Burlington in total scoring for each individual, was only two pins over George Bailey's 469, which was low for Barton's in the same event.

The quintet rolling for gas station proprietor, Joe Barton, just missed hitting the pay-off circle in the five-man event, falling short by a narrow margin with their final total of 2562 scored on game totals of 530-560-372. Burlington garnered only a 2192 score out of three games of 657-773-762 scores.

The next day, however, the boys, having adjusted themselves to the unaccustomed alleys, began to hit the maples at a merry clip in the doubles and singles with 7 out of ten going over the 500 mark in the two-man event, and everyone of them doing better than that figure in the singles.

Two of the five doubles teams hit above the thousand mark with the combination of Sutton and Schroeder going at a hot clip of 1155, which was less than 100 pins short of entering the first five in the doubles event. Shumard and Amisson hit the clubs for 1115 which was also high. The team of Baccardina and Bailey just missed hitting the 1000 figures by a single pin, finishing up with a total of 999. Cahall and Levensky had a 984 total and Moffo and Vansciver chalked up a 981 score in this event.

Sutton took the singles honors among the local bowlers, hitting for a total of 567, which was 7 pins better than the 560 score Joe Amisson posted. Al Moffo had a 550 total, while Levensky and Shumard had totals of 545 and 535. The last five, Baccardina, Bailey, Schroeder, Cahall and Vansciver, posted scores of 528-527-520-511-504 respectively.

The failure to hit the maples at their regular average in the five-man event proved to be the downfall of most of the Bristol bowlers, who otherwise would have tackled up some mighty fine combination scores in the "all-events" class. However, as it was, only two were able to cross the 1600 total in combination scores and these were short of 200 pins off the mark to land in the first five in total score.

Joe Amisson's 1693 was high for Bristol in this class with Sutton's 1634 as second. Amisson's total this year was more than 100 pins short of his grand total of over 1800 he chalked up in Chicago last year. Seven were in the 1500 class with Bailey missing that mark by 7 pins to fall in the 1400 class, and Vansciver way down the list in only the 1300 class.

Sutton hit the high single total for the three events when he posted a fine 235 score in his last game in the doubles. He also had high three game total with 596 rolled in the same event. Joe Amisson's 223 was second high single game score while his 581 total was second high three game score. Both were rolled in the doubles event also. Beside that he hit for a 215 in the 5-man event to be the only Bristol bowler to cross the 200 mark in that event. Schroeder's 211 score was the only other two hundred in the doubles, but in the singles, Sutton had scores of 211 and 200; Levensky had a 214. Shumard had an even 200; Baccardina had a 215, and Schroeder hit a 201 score.

Baccardina and Joe Amisson were the most consistent bowlers in the Bristol ranks, each hitting above the 500 figure in all three events. However, as aforementioned, many others would have had fine grand totals had they not hit for poor scores in the five man event on Friday evening.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE

There will be a meeting of the Bristol Basketball League this evening at 7:30 o'clock in Goodwill Fire Company station.

ASTORIA, Ore.—(INS)—On one of those nights "not fit for man or beast," coast guardsmen left their warm fires and card games in answer to a ship's lantern flashing the distress signal near the spot where wreckage of several boats dot the beach along the Washington coast. After battling heavy seas across the mouth of the Columbia River, irate guardsmen found Don Hall of Long Beach, Wash., diligently digging clams and hoisting his lantern every time a breaker swept in to keep it from going out.

BUCKY HARRIS MAKES NO FANCY PREDICTIONS

By James L. Kilgallen (I. N. S. Sports Writer)

ORLANDO, Fla., Mar. 27—(INS)—Entering his 15th year as an American League manager, Stanley (Bucky) Harris of the Washington Senators, now only 42, has grown too baseball wise to make fancy predictions in the Spring that will pop up to confound him in the Fall.

He surveyed with an experienced eye his array of youngsters as they scampered around Tinker Field today and quietly characterized them as "a rather nice ball team." It seemed like a conservative statement. Prodded a bit, he ventured the opinion that the club "stands a good chance to make the first division this year." Washington finished fifth last season.

Since he became the famous "boy manager" in 1924, Bucky Harris has gone through the mill as a pilot. He managed Washington ten years, Detroit for five and Boston for one. He won two pennants—in 1924 and 1925. "This year we are stressing youth," said Harris, as he stood by the batting cage and watched his youngsters hit. "You know we gave up first baseman Zeke Bonura to the New York Giants for pitchers Tom Baker, infielder Jimmy Carlin and $25,000. We also parted with the veteran Al Simmons to the Boston Bees for the waiver price. We decided that we had better start building up a young club.

"In our league it seems as if New York, Detroit, Boston and Cleveland are the first division clubs. But if a few of my young pitchers come through I think we'll nose one of those clubs out. Which one I couldn't say."

Harris has 24 pitchers in camp and he is conducting an experiment that is attracting much attention. He is trying to make a pitcher out of a giant Cuban named Roberto Ortizo who starred in Cuba last year as a catcher and an outfielder. Both Harris and Clark Griffith, the club owner, say Ortizo, who is six feet three, has terrific speed.

"This is the first time in 15 years I have been able to stand by the catcher and hear the ball sing when a man throws it," said Harris, referring to Ortizo.

Harris is also experimenting with Alexander Carrasquel, a South American from Venezuela who was the best pitcher in Cuba last season. Another newcomer who has attracted Harris' eye is a 19-year-old youth named Masterson.

"Ortizo, Carrasquel and Masterson are all strong-arm pitchers," said Harris. "They may run three pitchers off the ball club."

Harris, of course, is banking on good work from the hold-over pitchers who were with the club last year—Weaver, Leonard, Krakauskas, Kelley, De Shong, Chase and Appleton. He hopes Baker, from the Giants, will help. He also spoke of Haynes, Jacobs and Anderson as "good prospects."

Back of the plate he has the veteran Rick Ferrell, Giuliana, who didn't hit well last season, and Early, a youngster.

Washington's infield probably will be made up of Wassell at first, the veteran Buddy Meyer at second, Travis at short and Lewis at third. Old Ossie Bluege is still around and will fill in as a utility infielder.

Wright, in right, Case in center and Estalella in left, figures to be the regular outfield.

"Our weak spot is the pitching department," Harris frankly admitted. "But with 24 pitchers around I ought to be able to come up with a fair staff."

Griffith pointed out that this year Washington will be a left-handed hitting club. No less than five regulars hit from the left side of the plate.

BUCKY HARRIS MAKES NO FANCY PREDICTIONS

Both Harris and Griffith expect a tighter American League race in 1939. Harris saw no reason why the powerful New York Yankees should not be stopped. "It can't keep up forever," was the way he sized up New York's run of pennant wins.

HOLLYWOOD—If you want to get an icy stare out of anybody in the Warner Brothers production department, just start to tell one of those jokes about WPA workers leaning on their shovels. Recently, the "Each Dawn I Die" company wanted to make a location shot on a ranch shot on a ranch back of the studio. They found a WPA construction gang on the spot, working with cement mixers.

Foreman of the gang was appealed to. Would he please shut off the mixers for half an hour to let the company get its shot? "No," he snapped. "We can't lay down on the job just because some film company wants to work."

According to word from Palm Springs, the Frank Morgans family celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary was everything that was predicted for it.

Record achieved by the Morgans shows you never can tell from the way a marriage starts how it will end. When Frank secretly eloped to Hoboken with Alma Muller, her wealthy New York family was so opposed to the romance that they took the bride (although they didn't know she was a bride) on a trip to Europe to forget her actor sweetheart.

The family argued so convincingly that, on her return, Mrs. Morgan told Frank she didn't think they could make a go of the marriage. So, in a huff, he revealed it to the newspapers and went on the road in a play.

Two weeks later in Richmond he got a wire from his wife that she was going to join him. They've been together ever since.

Identity of the giver is unknown but in a free-for-all fight scene for "Maiden Voyage," Annabella got a shiner. It evidently is a peach for they couldn't hide it with makeup and had to send her home.

GRIFFITH COMPLIMENTS TY COBB, HANS WAGNER

By James L. Kilgallen (I. N. S. Sports Writer)

ORLANDO, Fla., March 27—(INS)—Two greatest players in the history of baseball: Ty Cobb and Hans Wagner. "Two greatest pitchers: Walter Johnson and Christy Matthewson.

So says Clark Griffith, 69-year-old president of the Washington Senators. Fifty-two years in baseball, Griffith has peered at a lot of ball players in his time. He was peering at his own club in Spring training here as he looked back through the years and talked about "the best."

Walter Johnson he classified without equivocation as the best pitcher who ever lived. The records prove that, Griffith said with finality. Johnson pitched for him. "He had more stuff than any other pitcher who ever toed the slab," added Griffith, himself one of the foxiest hurlers who ever donned a uniform.

"Johnson was the powerhouse of baseball," explained Griffith. "He over-powered the hitters. He had a terrific fast one and a sharp-breaking curve. He had a great head. He had an ideal temperament. He was a hitting pitcher, too. What more could you ask. Look up the records and see all the shutouts he pitched."

"Matthewson was the pitching artist of baseball. He didn't have any more rhythm nor as much power as Johnson, but he was adroit, heady and could do remarkable things with his fadeaway. The New York Giants had almost as good a man in Matthewson as I had in Johnson—the greatest of them all."

Griffith declared the two best spitball pitchers in history were "Big Ed" Walsh of the Chicago White Sox and Jack Chesbro of the New York Highlanders. Walsh won 40 games one year. Chesbro won 41. Nowadays a 20-game pitcher is some one to talk about.

"I couldn't say whether Ty Cobb or Hans Wagner was the better player. They both could do everything—hit, field, think, run bases."

"How about Babe Ruth?" he was asked.

"Ruth was great, but he wasn't the ball player those two were," replied Griffith. "Ruth couldn't run bases like they could. They were top hitters—they hit a higher average than did Ruth, although Ruth is a greater power hitter."

"When you talk about great players you also have to think of Speaker, Jackson, Sisler, Gehrig and DiMaggio—all great."

Griffith said he entered baseball when he was 17. He said if he were 17 again he'd do it all over.

I call my wife C. P. A. Certified Purchasing Agent!

I never saw anybody who can stretch a dollar the way she does! Everything she buys is a good value—and she never seems to get stuck with things that look good, but fall apart the first time they're used.

I told her one day that she'd make the Purchasing Agent of any business look sick. She was pleased when she saw I meant it.

"It's perfectly simple," she said. "I watch the advertisements the same way a stock broker watches the ticker tape. They keep me informed on 'good buys' — and save me a lot of shopping around, as well."

Sounds simple, doesn't it? But I can tell you it's saved this family a lot of money!
